Have you ever wondered how you could describe and share your opinions more clearly? A great way to do it is to use intensifiers! What are intensifiers? Intensifiers are an important tool in the vocabulary toolbox that should not be neglected! That movie was fantastic. That movie was really fantastic! Marcus is late. Marcus is super late! Intensifiers are modifiers in a phrase that add more emphasis to the word they are changing. They give emphasis and extra force to your sentence. Intensifiers are effective for gaining the point clearly. How do you use intensifiers? Intensifiers can be adverbs, adjectives or adverbial phrases. We have learned that they strengthen the meaning of other expressions and show emphasis. Therefore, you would use them in cases where you want to emphasize an emotion in a sentence or sentence. Here are some other examples: today's lesson was interesting. Today's lesson was incredibly interesting! That handbag is expensive. That handbag is very expensive. Today was a cold day. Today it was such a cold day. What are some other popular intensifiers in the United States? An intensifier who is truly abused is: literally. If you watch videos on social media, you've probably heard this word. This is a good example of because knowing the correct meaning of a word is so important! Make sure to keep your dictionary hand, look for these intensifiers and learn to use them correctly in a sentence. Here are some of the most common intensifiers in American English. They are used a lot in casual speech. Absolutely I have absolutely no desire to own a pet. I don't like artichokes at all. Don't worry completely, it's completely fine. Extremely this is extremely disordered. This book is really boring. Super this coffee is super hot. Very nice necklace. He was totally embarrassed because he forgot his keys. That sunset is amazingly beautiful. That sunset isncÀÀÀt beautiful at all. With practice, you will become familiar with the different intensifiers. Using Intensifiers in Writing Most of the time, you should only use intensifiers when you are speaking. If you are writing formally, for business or in academic writing, it can be considered a lazy way to write. ItçÀÀAs better to choose a strong adjective when you are writing. For example: That pie is really good. This is pretty casual and not a good sentence for formal writing. Instead, choose a strong adjective and doneÀÀÀt use an intensifier. That pie is delicious. Delicious is a strong adjective that means really good. HereçÀÀAs another example: The meeting was very long. The meeting was unending. If you are writing, itçÀÀAs better to use the strong adjective unending, without an intensifier. Intensifiers add emotion to your speaking, and it isncÀÀÀt really necessary to add emotion to most formal writing. Why Should I Use Intensifiers? You can express yourself more clearly with intensifiers, and your speech will also sound more natural. Intensifiers are an important way to show emotion. They can also help you sound more fluent, even if you doneÀÀÀt feel like you are fluent at all! But be careful çÀÀÀ intensifiers should not be used too much! Use a few of your favorite intensifiers here and there, just not in every sentence! Watch how your fluency totally blossoms! Check out GabbyçÀÀAs take on intensifiers, below! One student goes first and puts one of their noun cards face up on the table. The students then take it in turns to put down a noun card and make a Phrase with which, by connecting the two nouns together, for example 'a car is more faster than a bus'. A bus is more than an elephant, etc. Students can put a match before or after paper or the paper chain on the table, similar to Dominoes. Every time a student takes a card that must use a different comparative adjective. If a student commit a grammar error or cannot think of a way to connect two cards of noun together, a turn is lost. The first student to get rid of all their cards wins the game. Finally, the couples write the comparative phrases they have done and then read them to the class. Here is a fun comparative adjectives Guess game for elementary students playing in the classroom. In the game, the students guess that comparative adjectives in sentences on fun facts. Both students have the same sentences, but where they have a comparative adjective in bold, their partner has a gap and vice versa. Student B begins by reading the first sentence and guessing the missing comparative adjective. Student B has three possibilities to guess the comparative adjective. If the comparative adjective of Student B is the same as what you have in bold on their work sheet, Student B marks three points and writes the comparative adjective in the gap. If the hypothesis is wrong, Student B try again for two points and then for a point. So, it is the student's turn to guess the missing comparative adjective in the second sentence and so on. The student with the highest number of points at the end of the game wins. This comparative work sheet helps students learn and practice comparative adjectives and comparative phrases with which. Students begin by classifying adjectives and writing them in their comparative form. Subsequently, the students complete the sentences with the comparative form of adjectives + Students then move on to reorganize words to form comparative phrases. Finally, students do a multiple choice exercise where they choose the correct answer complete comparative sentences. Here is a free comparatives game to play in class. Write a noun on the board, e.g. piano. Teams then race to write down something bigger and smaller than the noun, a verb that goes with the noun, a word that comes earlier in the dictionary, a longer and a shorter word beginning with the same letter as the noun, an adjective to describe the noun, and the opposite of that adjective. When a team has completed all the items, check their answers. If the answers are appropriate, the team scores a point. The game continues with a different noun being used each round. The team with the most points at the end of the game wins.
